". . . the reader will find much of interest in the principles suggested here for the judicial and administrative process of the Church . . . The strength of the approach is the positive interpretation of law."

WE, THE PEOPLE OF GOD . . .
Edited by James A. Coriden

How the Code of Canon Law is eventually revised will determine, in a major way, the degree of success of renewal in the Church. Exploration of the possibilities of a constitutional form of government for the Church is the function of the writers in this book.

Here, scripture scholars, theologians, philosophers, historians, sociologists, cannonists, and civil lawyers express their views provocatively but constructively. The Society of Canon Law with Fordham University brought these experts together for a symposium held in New York, to make concrete suggestions based on principles of government by the community in the deliberative and decision-making process.

Paper, $1.95 Cloth, $4.95

From the Reviews

"All those who are interested in lively discussions among scholars of divergent views and backgrounds on topical issues will appreciate this book . . . This symposium was a beginning; all who are concerned about the renewal of canon law should rejoice that so much was achieved."
